

CHARLATAN PROTECTORS STATE ACTORS SYSTEM FAILS

National Guardsman and Veteran Beat, Sexually Degrade 5 Year Old Boy For Not “Squashing a Bug” (audio only)

👤 sixie6e 📅 May 25, 2020 ✎ Edit

updated: January 11, 2021- he still has his son:

It is one thing to teach children to hunt to eat and to make use of whatever else is left. However, to beat a boy and degrade him sexually for not squashing a bug, throwing the boy into the headboard and beating him with a whole dead fish is not how to do it. Matthew Aaron Council and Donald deal of Tulsa, OK did just that. The system should have prevented the child from returning to an environment like that. The system presents an image of humanitarianism and compassion, but behind closed doors, behind a badge, humans are 'property' to do with as you please:

WARNING GRAPHIC AUDIO!

0:00 / 0:25

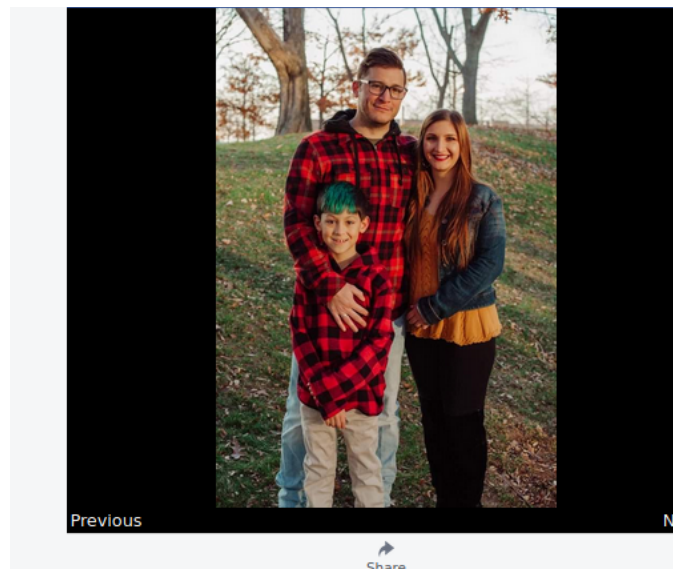

beats him, sexually degrades him

0:00 / 0:33

this is not how fishing with dad is supposed to go

0:00 / 2:35

council and donald deal trying to get me to beat the boy as well

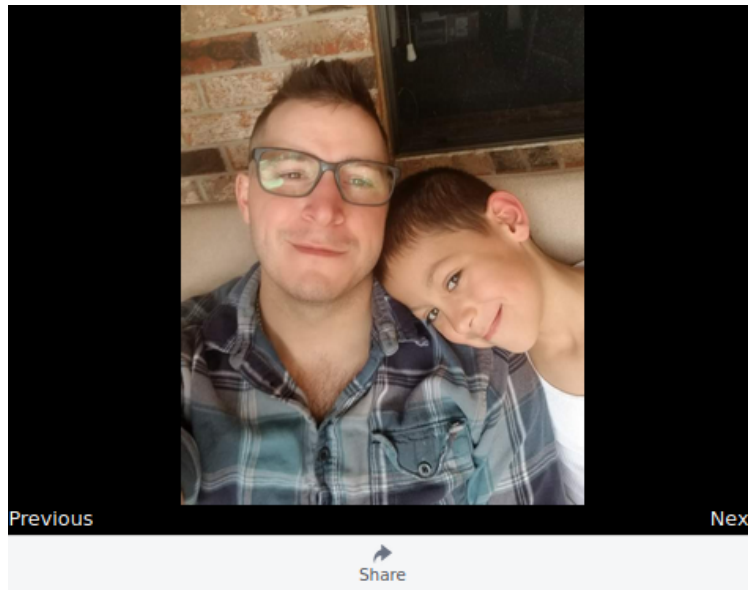

Aaron Councilll

Dec 27, 2020 · Public · in Cover Photos

View Full Size · Send as Message · Find support or report photo · Change Cover Photo

pictures are often deceiving

Aaron Councilll

Mar 12, 2020 · Public · in Profile Pictures

how disgustingly adorable

123. The Soldiers' Honor Fallacy: The ancient fallacy that all who wore a uniform, fought hard and followed orders are worthy of some special honor or glory or are even "heroes," whether they fought for freedom or fought to defend slavery, marched under Grant or Lee, Hitler, Stalin, Eisenhower or McArthur, fought to defend their homes, fought for oil or to spread empire, or even fought against and killed U.S. soldiers! A corrupt argument from ethos (that of a soldier), closely related to the "Finish the Job" fallacy ("Sure, he died for a lie, but he deserves honor because he followed orders and did his job faithfully to the end!"). See also "Heroes All." This fallacy was recognized and decisively refuted at the Nuremburg Trials after World War II but remains powerful to this day nonetheless. See also "Blind Loyalty." Related is the State Actor Fallacy, that those who fight and die for their country (America, Russia, Iran, the Third Reich, etc.) are worthy of honor or at least pardonable while those who fight for a non-state actor (armed abolitionists, guerrillas, freedom-fighters, jihadis, mujahideen) are not and remain "terrorists" no matter how noble or vile their cause, until or unless they win and become the recognized state, or are adopted by a state after the fact.

← Ex-Employer Fantasizes About Children, I Quit, Demanded My Last Two Weeks Check ($500) He Cries Extortion To Avoid Paying For My Labor

Want Your Computer to Be Better Than Government Computers DIY For Free? →

